The Program

The Program is offered by the School of Philosophy of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens (NKUA)

It is the first English-taught Bachelor's degree Program at a Greek University

It is available to international students

This innovative Program harmoniously and profoundly combines the sciences of Archaeology, Ancient History and Classical literature.

It enriches the courses in classroom with on-site instruction in places of archeological and cultural interest

It includes six semester courses of systematic teaching of the ancient Greek language

The curriculum also includes a number of classes in Modern Greek, offered free of charge to all students during the first year of their studies.

The duration of the study program is four (4) years (eight academic semesters)

The total amount of ECTS required to successfully complete the program is 248 ECTS

The structure of the study program aims at the development of intellectual and cultural ties between Greece and other countries.

It contributes decisively to the promotion of the international character of Greek studies.

The program is already becoming impressively dynamic and successful.

It has a renewed legal framework

It enriched the number and strengthened the variety of its seminar courses

It introduced the mandatory participation of students in excavations that is an unsurpassed experience for every aspiring archaeologist

It already enjoys international recognition

It has signed bilateral agreements with renowned foreign universities and their students spend one year of study abroad at our university and in the program:

- ⇒ Southwest University (SWU), P.R. China
- ⇒ University of Cincinnati, (UC), Ohio, U.S.A
- ⇒ Northwest Normal University (NWNNU), P. R. China

Many other agreements are moving rapidly towards completion with countries such as the USA (some in the context of the International Academic Partnership Program [IAPP] Greece which was inaugurated by the Minister of Education)

It organized in collaboration with the Boston University and the Study in Greece the summer school “Voyage into Greek Civilization”

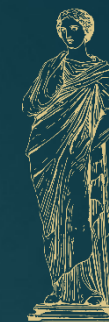

This academic year, the number of students participating in it has impressively increased

Our freshmen: 37 students from 16 different countries. During the spring semester 25 students will be added for a semester of study abroad

The total number of students comes from 21 countries

Dear students

Last year was much better:

Educational excursions were carried out to many archaeological sites around Attica and other areas important in antiquity

The lessons were offered in the classroom on campus

You participated in high-level courses that enhanced your knowledge and sharpened your critical thinking

Your professors highlighted the values of Greco-Roman antiquity, which are inherent in the structure of modern societies

At the same time, they fully utilized the recent trends in science and technology

The courses of this Program helped and will help you not only to delve into the essence of Greek culture, but also get a better understanding of your own cultures.

I wish you

A good start and a very good continuation in your studies

To acquire new and interesting knowledge

To lay the foundations to become good scientists

To make new and good friends

To enjoy your life in Greece to the fullest

To be able to realize most of your dreams

Thank you!
