

Webinar

Policies and actions in Gender Equality comparing universities' experiences

17 December 17, 2021

h. 9-12.30

The webinar aims at analysing the process of gender equality in the various declinations within national and European academic contexts in light of experiences of the CIVIS universities partners. As a matter of fact, the universities play a strategical role with their research and teaching activities, as a cultural mission for society. It's what during the 71st United Nations General Assembly in 2016, the UN Women unveiled with the first-ever HeForShe Impact 10x10x10 University Parity Report. It was the starting point for academic concrete commitments based on the universities' progress toward achieving inner gender parity, but also in the economic, political and social institutions that universities inspire with their knowledge. After some years, universities have strengthened their role, becoming more critical about their gender gaps and facing new social challenges. Many of the latter will be debated as the focus of the meeting comparing research, teaching and planning experiences among the CIVIS partners, whose main goals as a scientific consortium insist on them (e.g., sustainable development and gender implications, social impact assessment and indicators of the University inclusion policies, etc.).
